DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 15, 16, 18 to 26, 28 and 32 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Klute et al.

Klute et al. discloses conversion means for use in stands of cold rolling tandem mills in which bars 3, 4 with slots 5, 6 engage lugs of cassettes for either four-high or six-high rolling with the same backup rolls and force application means. The bars include cylinders for roll bending and side support.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

4. Claims 1 to 14, 17, 27, 31 and 33 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Klute et al. in view of the admitted prior art.

On page two of the specification, lines 5 to 12, it is admitted prior art to select roll stand configurations depending on the characteristics of the product intended to be processed. Therefore, it would have been an obvious utilization of knowledge present in the art to select the configuration of the Klute et al. tandem stands according to product data, as required by these claims. To optimize the configuration for any particular product data, as recited in Claim 9 for example, is considered to be merely an obvious exercise of routine experimentation following the knowledge that different stand configurations are more suitable for materials with different characteristics, and not a patentable distinction absent a disclosure of criticality in the solution of stated problems, or the achievement of surprising or unexpected results, with any specific combination of stand configuration and product data.

The number of backup/intermediate rolls present in the stand when installing the Klute et al. small roll cassette of Figure 2, as recited in Claims 6 and 17 for example, is not considered to be a patentable distinction since the function and operation of the small roll cassette would be the same regardless of the backing arrangement.

5. Claims 29 and 30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Klute et al. in view of Dahlstrom.

These claims require the small work rolls to be spring-pressed against the respective backup rolls. Dahlstrom shows such an arrangement to be well known for supporting small diameter work rolls.

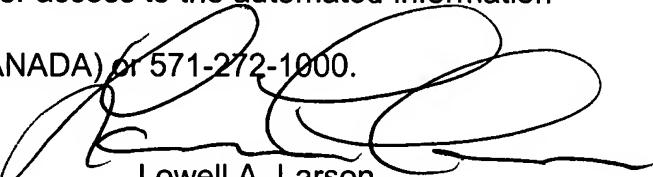

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to support the small diameter rolls of the Klute et al. Figure 2 cassette by springs, following the suggestion of Dahlstrom, in order to facilitate adjustability of the rolls by the side rolls

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Iverson and Stoy et al. further show the state of the art.
